Fight Mysterious Malady As 10 Babies Die

DOCTORS SEEK TO SAVE LIVES OF 8 OTHERS

Chicago Hospital Declines New Obstetrical Cases; Isolates All Infants.

HAVE SAME INFECTION

Scientists Inspecting Water Supply, Sewage System to Halt Outbreak.

CHICAGO — (AP)—Physicians and scientists waged a concerted fight today against a strange disease that has caused the death of 10 babies and imperiled the lives of eight others during the past 11 days.

All of the tiny victims were in the infants' ward of St. Elizabeth's hospital. The disease, which killed most of the babies within 24 hours, was characterized by violent inflammation of the small intestines and was diagnosed as enteritis, or acute epidemic diarrhea.

Isolation Ordered.

The outbreak, confined to St. Elizabeth's hospital, began Nov. 23. Four babies died before the symptoms were fully recognized. The hospital immediately declined new obstetrical cases and isolated the other infants, but six succumbed and eight others were stricken. All of the latter were in serious condition.

The victims ranged in age from nine days to 24 days. Seven of them were girls.

Autopsies performed on the last two babies to die disclosed both had the same infection. In one, however, marked changes in the brain which apparently had occurred just before death led bacteriologists to believe that the disease is caused by a virus or germ.

Dr. Herman Bundesen, president of the board of health, said there was no known defense against the infection, that it strikes without warning and that its rate of mortality was about 50 per cent. The only recourse, he said, was isolation.

Inspect Water, Sewers.

Dr. Bundesen said the disease may be "a very virulent ultramicroscopic vultrable virus," and added "no one seems to know what causes it."

Public health doctors and nurses, summoned as soon as the disease was diagnosed, inspected the water supply, sewage, sterilizers, and food formulas in a futile effort to discover a clue to the cause of the outbreak.

Dr. Francis Dulak, member of the hospital staff, expressed the opinion the outbreak was under control.

USE GAS MASKS

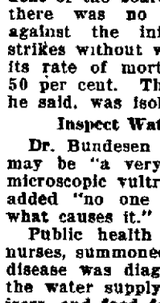
Thieves Defy Tear Bombs, Flee With $2,000 Loot.

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)— Burglars believed to have worn gas masks looted a safe of $2000 at the Brown Brothers Coal company here early today.

Police were sure the burglars wore masks, for the room was automatically flooded with tear gas by a protective device when they knocked the combination off the safe.

No. 13!

ALAN GOULD, sports editor of The Associated Press since 1923, today presents his thirteenth all-America football team.



Alan Gould

TO SAY that No. 13, in this instance, is a lucky number for eleven football players would hardly be fair. For the AP all-America men earned their recognition. No luck was involved. The men were selected by the largest staff of football experts in the business.

NEVERTHELESS, to eleven first-string all-America athletes, to 22 second and third-string men, and to those on the all-America honor roll, today brings recognition, credit and glory. To find out who the all-America players of 1937 are, and why they are all-America, turn to Page 7.

C. of C. to Study New Water Plan

Committees to Go Over Recommendations of Engineers.

With the long-awaited engineer's report on the water situation in the hands of the state board of health, for its approval, at least one other organization was preparing today to undertake a study of the recommendations.

That organization was the Chamber of Commerce, through its water development and fire prevention committees, both of which have been actively urging extension and improvement in the city water distribution system.

Paul W. Williams, secretary-manager of the C. of C. said today that he would try to arrange a joint meeting of the committees to go over the engineer's recommendations next week. Since neither he nor the chairman of the committees have seen a copy of the report, there was no comment forthcoming from them. C. L. Van Derau, Westinghouse executive, is chairman of the water development committee, and Herbert Slough, insurance agency head, is chairman of the fire prevention committee.

Backs Long Range Program.

The C. of C. has actively urged a long range program such as is contained in the report of George B. Gascoigne and Associates, Cleveland.

Although council has the water development program before it, and has been waiting completion of the Gascoigne report, it was not believed likely that much time would be devoted to the water problem at Tuesday's meeting, since it is the last meeting of the year, and the membership of council will change Jan. 1. It is hardly likely, in any event, that the study of the report will have been completed by the state board of health by that time.

The Gascoigne report sets up a five-year development program, at an estimated cost of $697,000, providing for general rehabilitation of the water syetem.

Meanwhile, a check for $2,650, representing payment for the survey, was on the way to the Gascoigne concern.

It was placed in the mail today by City Auditor Paul Kelley, who said he had received an approved voucher from Service-Safety Director Philip Wolfe. The city received the copy of the report Thursday.

Council early this year approved an appropriation for $3,000 for the survey, and later authorized Wolfe to enter into a contract with Gascoigne for $2,650. The survey was started in April.

UNION PROTESTS

WPA Workers Oppose Return Of Suspended Supervisors.

While threats of a sit-down strike were made the Works Progress Union of Richland county at a special meeting last night voted to protest to WPA officials at Columbus the return of two supervisors to their jobs at the end of their suspensions.

The supervisiors, A. H. Moellenkamp, project engineer, and C. O. Gettings, project superintendent, who were suspended yesterday by James L. Kelly, director of WPA District No. 6, for negligence on the Bellville sewage project that resulted in the death of Hugh H. Call, a laborer, on Nov. 23.

Terming the death of Call "a rank miscarriage of justice" Warren Wheelock, president of the union addressing the group said, "I believe that we should pull a sit-down strike on the job to show that we oppose the re-instatement of the two officials."

Officials of the union were ordered to send a letter to WPA headquarters protesting the return of the two officials to their jobs.

A program of vocational training has been installed at the Ohio State Reformatory here in an effort to help inmates better establish themselves into society again after serving their sentences. Training courses in 19 trades are offered. Pictured at the top, left, is a view of the institution printing shop where inmates are instructed in printing. At the top, right, an inmate is shown operating a milling machine under the supervision of J. H. Weaver, machine shop superintendent. Inmates are given an automobile engine for overhauling in the bottom photo as LeRoy Kenyon, instructor in automobile mechanics, looks on. On completing the courses, inmates are given the rating of "advanced apprentices" in the various trades they select.

GIRL KILLED AS CAR HITS TREE

Ashlander Fatally Hurt When Auto Fails to Make Curve; Man Seriously Injured.

ASHLAND — Injured at 6:30 p. m. Friday when the automobile in which she was riding with Arthur Coleman, about 40, crashed into a tree, Miss Virginia Louise Kopp, 24, of Ashland, died an hour and a half later at Samaritan hospital.

Coleman is in a critical condition in the hospital, suffering from a crushed chest and possible internal injuries.

Coleman, who was driving south on route, 60, apparently lost control of the car at Mohermann's corner three miles south of Ashland. The machine, which residents of the vicinity said was being driven at high speed, failed to make a curve and struck the tree.

Miss Kopp's head was crushed against the dashboard. She never regained consciousness. Coleman was thrown against the steering wheel and into the windshield of the car.

The couple was believed en route to Hayesville after leaving the home of Miss Kopp's parents in Ashland.

Miss Kopp, who was born in Ashland Aug. 17, 1913, lived in the city all her life. She was a member of the Christian church. She was a triplet, a brother having died in infancy and a sister, third member of the trio, surviving her.

Miss Kopp is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Kopp, and five sisters, Mrs. Violet Dilgard, Mrs. Nina Rickel, Mrs. Twila Brown, Mrs. Treva Hively and Mrs. Mabel Howell, all of Ashland.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2:30 p. m. Sunday at the Shaw Funeral home, Ashland, with Rev. T. E. Smoke officiating. Burial will be in the Red Haw cemetery, east of Ashland.

HOLDS ANNA'S CELL 'UNSAFE'

State Official Says Hospital Building at Pen Fire Hazard.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Harry J. Callan, assistant state fire marshal, said today he would report to State Fire Marshall James Ladd Rockwell that the hospital building in which Mrs. Anna Marie Hahn is quartered at Ohio penitentiary was "unsafe."

"The building was erected in 1895," Callan said, "and is of tile construction which could not withstand sudden temperature changes due to water directed upon the walls in case of a fire."

"Warden James A. Woodard has done everything in his power to make the structure safe," Callan added.

Japan's Troops in Brush With French at Shanghai

Nipponese Trucks Halted By Troops and Armored Cars as They Invade French Concession.

BULLETIN

SHANGHAI—(U.P.)—Japanese advance units have smashed their way to within 35 miles of Nanking, a Japanese army spokesman asserted today.

SHANGHAI—(U.P.)—Japanese soldiers were involved in another tense incident with foreign troops today, 24 hours after brushes with United States marines and British soldiers.

French troops, backed by armored cars, halted five Japanese military trucks seeking to pass along the French concession bund from Hongkew, Japanese section of the international settlement, to Nantao, the Chinese district between the concession and the Whangpoo river.

Fifty steel-helmeted French Annamites, lined up with fixed bayonets, barred the way. Japanese and French officers stood in the street and argued hotly while three French armored cars behind the French soldiers directed their guns at the Japanese trucks.

The Japanese force was composed of 35 soldiers armed with rifles and several officers. They had asked permission to move military supplis along the bund into Nantao and the French had given permission provided the Japanese were unarmed.

The Japanese were fully armed, however, and the French stopped them.

The French finally permitted the trucks to pass but placed an armed officer aboard each vehicle. A French motorcycle escort led the way.

Foreign observers believed the object of today's move by the Japanese was to establish a precedent for the transportation of military supplies through the French concession. It was emphasized, however, that the French probably would never permit the Japanese to establish a precedent of armed troops moving through the area.

CRASH KILLS 2

Lorain Man, Wife Die as Truck Derails Traction Car.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— August Quast, 35, manager of the Central Laundry Co., Lorain, and his wife, Erma, 31, were killed instantly late last night when the light delivery truck collided with an eastbound Lake Shore Electric Railway Co., car near Avon Lake, west of here.

The force of the collision derailed the traction which snapped an electric pole in half and crashed into a ditch. Six passengers and the conductor and motorman however, escaped injury.

The Quasts were approaching their home when the accident occurred.

4 DIE IN CRASH

A Thousand Kids, a Thousand Cans For Christmas Baskets

One thousand youngsters, 25 adults and four dogs—by actual count — stormed the Madison theater this morning for the first Christmas baket can matinee.

And after their assault on the theater portals quieted down, Community Christmas workers hauled away to the Salvation Army more than a thousand cans of food, of all varieties. Thus was a start made toward gathering up the food that will be needed for the Christmas baskets for the needy this year.

Today's show was the first of three can matinees to be staged this month, and the youngsters responded nobly. Every youngster brought at least one can of food and one little chap brought a basket of canned goods. Another offered two cans—"one is for me and one is for my dog, who'll be good if you'll let him go in and sit with me."

Laurel and Hardy never played to a more enthusiastic audience than the one which whooped at their every antic this morning. The show was a tremendous success, therefore, from both an "artistic and financial" standpoint.

The next can matinee pass word, will be at the Ritz theater, Saturday, Dec. 11, and again every phase of the show will be donated by the manager, Sol Bernstein and his employes.

TRADE TO BE 'DIPLOMA' FOR O.S.R. 'GRADS'

Inmates In Future Will Bid Farewell to Institution With Vocations.

OFFERED 19 COURSES

Glattke's Program Gives His Wards 'Lift' Before Their Return to Society.

Freedom restored, inmates of the Mansfield Reformatory no longer will bid farewell to the massive, gray-walled institution with no vocation to follow or with only a smattering knowledge of various trades.

From now on—if the goal of Supt. Arthur L. Glattke is achieved—the majority of new arrivals and the 2,700 inmates now serving time, will have the chance to establish themselves into society again with the rating of "advanced apprentices" in any one of 19 different trades.

Typing Included.

They'll leave busy institution furniture shops as apprentices in furniture making; leave prison schools behind as typists schooled in shorthand and bookkeeping; depart from the printery with instruction in type setting and composition.

Others will "graduate" from prison schools with technical knowledge in plumbing, sheet metal work, stationary engineering, farming, tailoring, barbering and other vocations.

The trade school program, only recently launched but already functioning smoothly, was made possible through a special appropriation of $7,500 approved by the state legislature a year ago.

Aid For Personal Security.

The program was drafted to pave the way for inmates to acquire a knowledge that will help them more easily re-establish themselves and obtain a means for permanent personal security, Supt. Glattke said.

"We hope to send them back to their own communities, or wherever they may go when they leave, with the proper equipment to find a job in industry, farming, or any of the other trades," the superintendent said.

"We do not maintain that the trade schools will serve to keep all of them out of trouble when

PROVIDES CLUE

O.S.R. Jacket Found in Auto Aids Hunt for 4 Inmates.

Discovery of a Mansfield reformatory jacket in an abandoned stolen automobile near Dayton today provided a clue in the search for four inmates of the institution who escaped last Saturday, Associated Press dispatches from Dayton reported.

The four, believed to have had outside aid in their escape, were Kenneth Haffa, 20; James Fisher, 19; Walter Campbell, 20, and Roy Hall, 18. They disappeared from the outside dormitory, and were believed to have been met by accomplices, waiting in an automobile on nearby State Route 13.

All four were sentenced from Dayton on charges of auto theft and burglary.

POLICE KILLER SUSPECT SHOT

Wounded As He Falls Into Indiana Police Trap.

LAGRANGE, Ind. —(U.P.)— A blast of shotgun and revolver fire today brought down Robert Shaw, alleged fugitive murderer of a deputy sheriff, and ended a two-day posse hunt through the swamps of northern Indiana and southern Michigan.

The 27-year-old desperado was near death in Irwin hospital, here. His right leg and right arm were shattered by gunfire, and there were bullet wounds in both sides of his chest.

Shaw, wandering aimlessly through the swamps, fell into a carefully laid police trap about five miles northeast of here.

ORDER 8 AGAINST WALL, THEN FLEE IN CAR WITH $150

Armed Robbers Order Them To Line Up Against Wall, Then Loot Franklin Finance Office; Escape in Sedan, Believed Headed North.

Drawing guns soon after they entered the Franklin Finance company, 54 West Third street, two bandits forced five employes and three customers to face the wall while they rifled a cash register and safe in a six-minute hold-up at 11:30 a. m. today.

LeRoy B. Hamilton, manager, one of the eight persons menaced, estimated they obtained a "few hundred" dollars. Most of the company's funds had been banked an hour previously, he said.

Police broadcast news of the hold-up as soon as they were advised of it, and the highway patrol also broadcast an order to all patrolmen to be on the look-out for the dark sedan in which the bandits made their getaway.

The state officers threw up a highway blockade within a 50-mile radius of Mansfield. Shelby police were also notified and were on the look-out for the bandit car.

Entering the company office while dozens of Saturday shoppers were passing outside, the gunmen shouted "This is a stick-up" and directed Mrs. L. B. Hamilton, assistant manager, and Mrs. Wilma Orock, a clerk, to raise their hands and face the wall.

While one bandit guarded them, the second started looting the cash drawer. At that stage, James Bailey, treasurer, walked into the front office from another room. He also was forced to the wall, and later was forced to accompany the one robber to the company's safe.

As he searched the vault, the gunman heard L. B. Hamilton, manager, and S. B. Hout, a collector, conversing in another office.

He forced Bailey to accompany him to the office. Shouting "Get up you ——" the gunman forced Hamilton and Hout to join the others lined against the wall.

While this was transpiring in the rear of the office three persons came into the office, R. F. Cox, of the Cox insurance agency, Kenneth D. Stump, 78 Park avenue east, and Frank L. Yarger, 593 Springmill street. They also were lined up against the wall.

While the one gunman still stood guard, the other proceeded to search officers and employes in the line-up.

"Got any guns?" he asked and then proceeded to relieve them of their personal cash. The bandits did not molest the customers.

Only a few bills were obtained but the gunman overlooked a larger amount of money which Bailey had in his pocket and failed to find a bill-fold which Hout carried for his collections. About $30 was obtained from Hamilton and $3 from Bailey.

With the cash in his pockets, the gunman told his companion "get the car started while I guard them."

The one gunman left and a few seconds later signalled to his aid by blowing the auto horn. The bandit then backed out of the

GREEN, LEWIS ABANDON TALKS

Fail to Reach Basis for Labor Settlement; Committees to Continue Conferences.

WASHINGTON —(AP)—Negotiations for complete reunion of organized labor's factions neared collapse today after John L. Lewis and William Green failed to reach an understanding in two days of conferences.

The two leaders of 7,000,000 organized workers, ending their face-to-face peace meeting last night, announced they had made no agreement and did not expect to meet again.

They will report on Dec. 21 to the full peace committee of three American Federation of Labor representatives and 10 CIO delegates

It was a sudden end to the conversations that began Thursday with fanfare and excitement.

Although many observers were pessimistic, they said the last chance for peace was not gone.

Green and Lewis left the conference rooms separately. Lewis, his gray slouch hat yanked down over his eyes, said there were no conclusions and no recommendations to report to the full committee.

Green, asked about the outcome of the conference, told interviewers to draw their own conclusions.

From persons close to the two labor leaders it was learned that the conferees had made progress insofar as they weeded out many subordinate issues and complaints which had hampered the negotiations.

Handing the stale-mated problem back to the full committees, Lewis said, left the situation in status quo—the condition it was in when he and Green agreed to talk it over.

SMOKE, FOG PALL HITS PITTSBURGH

Residents Hope For Stiff Breeze To Clear Up Haze.

PITTSBURGH —(AP)— Smoke-bound Pittsburghers sniffled and sneezed in a cold, dirt-laden haze today and hoped for a good stiff breeze.

Weather Observer W. S. Brotzman said the steel city was caught in the center of a slow-moving high-pressure area. Wind above the downtown section was maving about three miles an hour, he said, too feeble to blow away the accumulation of smoke and fog.

Airplane pilots reported the pillar of smoke rose a mile in the air and that the famed "golden triangle" resembled a "ball of black ink."

Jurors Discharged In Trial of Alleged Killer of Nurse.

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— Deadlocked seven to five, the jury trying Stanley Brooks for the slaying of Ethel Ostling, Dent, Minn., nurse, was discharged last night. Superior Judge Thomas P. White reset the trial for Dec. 16.

Brooks is accused of pushing Miss Ostling from a fifth story hotel window during a drinking party Sept. 6. Her body was nude except for one stocking.

TRIP CUT SHORT

Roosevelt's Jaw Fails to Heal; Returns to Capital.

MIAMI, Fla.—(AP)— President Roosevelt arranged today to return immediately to Washington for further dental treatment upon discovery that the gum where an abscessed tooth was removed Nov. 18 was failing to heal as rapidly as expected.

Three full days were trimmed from his southern trip schedule, one from his fishing cruise and two set aside for stop-overs in Georgia, to permit him to reach the national capital by Monday evening.

Temporary White House officials insisted neither the crisis in China nor the congressional situation was a factor in the decision to return ahead of time.

The president said that due to the delayed healing of his gum he thought it advisable to return directly to Washington.

One Mid-Western Player Selected

Sweeney of Notre Dame Named to End Position; Two Pitt Stars Honored.

By ALAN GOULD, Associated Press Sports Editor.

NEW YORK—(AP)—In an era of football specialists, developed to handle the growing complexities of America's most spectacular college sport, it is noteworthy that the 1937 All-America team, announced today, emphasizes the part that iron men have played in one of the most stamina-testing seasons on record.

Shock troops and specialists still figure prominently in the maneuvers of the nation's foremost aggregations of gridiron talent, but the all-star spotlight shines brightest on the boys who not only stood the gaff by going the 60-minute route when needed but who also scaled their greatest heights of achievement under pressure.

Sectionally, the distribution of All-America honors emphasizes the comeback of the eastern "Old Guard" domain for the second straight year. Paced by Pitts-burgh's mighty Panthers, only outfit to place two men, the east collected five of the 11 berths on the first team.

Off Year In Big 10.

This was an 'off year for the midwest, notably for the Big Ten, so far as contributions to the All-America argument were concerned, but the South, Southwest and far West challenged the East with a flock of talented performers.

Rarely has a finer crop of ends been studied in action or has any position offered more hazards for the All-America picker. Only after exhaustive examination of their records and comparisons with the best elsewhere did the choices fall upon Notre Dame's Chuck Sweeney and Cornell's Jerome Holland, first colored star to make the first All-America lineup since Walter Camp picked Paul Robeson of Rutgers in 1918.

The east and south waged the hottest contest for the tackles. Ed Franco, Fordham's under-slung play-wrecker, and Pitts-burgh's Tony Matisi, 224-pound powerhouse finally got the call.

The guard spots offered one of the few All-America breathing spells, with little or no dispute to the selection of Joe Routt, the bundle of energy operating on an iron-man basis for Texas A. & M., and Alabama's great captain, Le-roy Monsky.

This year's center choice, Carl Columbus Hinkle, jr., of Vander-bilt, measures up to the highest standards on all counts, includ-ing durability, but his margin is by no means dominating.

All four men selected for this year's All-America backfield are halfback types, though Yale's Clint Frank carries fullback drive and power in his chunky frame.

Over the season's stretch and in the clutches none seriously challenged the All-America lead-ership of Frank and "Whizze" White, the players of the year.

Goldberg Stands Out.

Marshall Goldberg had to be great to stand out on a Pitt team possessing extraordinary back-field talent as a whole. He star-red on the defense and engineer-ed what few passes the Panthers tried but was at his best on Pitt's slashing reverses or off-tackle power trusts.

Like Goldberg, Sam Chapman had to prove his greatness in ex-ceptional company.

The A-P second team: Smith, Oklahoma, and Jordon, Georgia Tech, ends; Markow, Washington, and Mellus, Villanova, tackles; Tweddell, Minnesota, and Lezou-ski, Pittsburgh, guards; Aldrich, Texas Christian, center; O'Brien, Texas Christian; Pingel, Michigan State; Gray, Oregon State; Os-manski, Holy Cross, backs.

Third team: Benton, Arkansas, and Bershak, North Carolina, ends; Kinard, Mississippi, and Gatto, Louisiana State, tackles; Sivell, Auburn, and Zitrides, Dart-mouth, guards; Wojciechowicw, Fordham, center; Luckman, Col-umbia; Isbell, Purdue; McDonald, Ohio State; MacLeod, Dartmouth, backs.

FIGHT POST SEASON BAN

Big Ten Athletic Heads Want Chance to Play In Rose Bowl.

By CHARLES DUNKLEY

CHICAGO — (AP)—Removal of two restrictions on football in the Western conference were up for consideration today by the faculty committee, after their presentation had been made by the direc-tor of athletics.

They were: Lifting the ban on the modified training table which would enable the directors to pro-vide at least one wholesome meal for football players four times a week.

Removal of the ban against post season games. The coaches want legislation that will enable the Big Ten champion to become a potential foe in the annual Rose Bowl game. Not since 1921 has a conference team appeared in the Rose Bowl.

Success of the training table move appeared doubtful, although some of the directors felt certain that the faculty representative would act favorably.

WOOD TO COACH ARMY

Former Cadet Star Appointed to Replace Gar Davidson.

WEST POINT, N. Y.—(U.P.)—Capt. William H. Wood, a star cadet fullback 15 years ago, will coach Army's football team next year. Wood was appointed head coach yesterday, succeeding Lieut. Gar Davidson, who returns to ac-tive service after leading the Sol-diers since 1933. It was a rou-tine change. Davidson had the job five years, one more than has been the custom.

Tygers Defeated In Opener, 22-20

New Cage Edition Shows Promise Despite Loss to More Experienced, Bigger Akron Club.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor

MARK up a defeat for the new basketball edition of Mansfield high school, but this is no definite indication that the 1937-38 cam-paign will prove to be a failure.

Coach Russ Murphy's court cavorters showed plenty of promise on the home hardwood last night before the largest opening night crowd of recent years, but they lacked the height and experience of the rangy Akron Kenmore representatives, and were forced to absorb a 22 to 20 setback in their debut.

The lack of size will handicap the pint-sized Tygers throughout the season, despite the fact that the number of tip-offs have been reduced by the rule change. However, the Murphy boys are slick ball handlers, fast as lightning on their feet, aggressive and alert.

If they can find the range of the hoops, the Tygers will hold their own against the heavy op-ponents which confront them as they are bound to gain experience as the season progresses.

Game Is Faster.

The game is considerably faster with the elimination of a certain amount of jumping, but the well-conditioned Murphymen appear to possess the necessary stamina.

Murphy made only one substi-tution last night, and the Tygers showed less fatigue than their sturdier foes from the Rubber City.

Although not slated to start, Freddy Lewis was put into the lineup by a last-minute change, and he came through with a sparkling offensive performance.

The little letterman accounted for 10 points to lead both teams in scoring. He was the chief Mansfield scoring threat, but Jack Lyons, who paired at the guards with John Hallabrin, and Tommy Scott conducted themselves well in their debut as regulars.

Aided by Prasher, who con-trolled the rebounds, the Cardinal outfit from Akron won the ball game with long shots. The visi-tors failed to show as much ges-ketball as the Tygers, but they hit from out in the field.

Sight to Watch.

Mansfield's short passing game was a sight to watch, and it bothered the Cardinals not a little as the Tygers broke into an early lead. The Tygers held the lead until midway in the second period, and never regained it, although it knotted the count with a minute to go.

The hard-fought tilt was de-cided in the last minute when Finegan, who, with Storosto, a sub, was a constant menace, pulled away from his man to dribble beneath the unprotected mesh to score the deciding points.

Hallabrin scored the first point of the season for the Tygers with a free throw, and Lyons added the initial basket after taking a short pass from Scott under the bucket. The Tygers tallied seven points before Kenmore could break into the scoring column.

The opening period ended 7-3, and then a barrage of long shots which landed safely within the webbing enabled the Cardinals to tie the count and go ahead by an 11-7 margin before the Tygers could retaliate on Lewis' basket.

Leads at Half.

Kenmore held a 13-9 advantage at the half, and increased the margin to 19-14 at the end of the third period.

Fighting desperately to get back into the ball game, Mansfield gradually reduced the margin, and Lewis' side shot put the Tygers only one point behind going into the last four minutes. Scott's charity toss tied it up, and the game hung in the balance until Finegan provided the game-clinch-ing points.

Finegan and Storosto led the visitors in scoring with six points apiece. Lloyd Miller, Kenmore football star, was at center, and he contributed a pair of baskets.

Reserves Suffer Loss In Last Minutes.

A BAD EXAMPLE was set for the Tygers in the preliminary game when the Mansfield reserves dropped a 20 to 18 decision to the Butler Ex-Hys.

It was a thrill-packed game, and was also decided in the fad-ing seconds. Only three seconds remained when Ed Beveridge cut the nets from behind the foul circle to break an 18-18 deadlock in favor of his team.

The reserves held a 15-10 ad-vantage going into the last pe-riod, but it proved to be insuf-ficient as the Butler boys rallied to pull what appeared to be a de-feat out of the fire. Glendon Miller's bucket knotted the count in the last minute.

Defending County League Champions Turn Back Lucas, 32-20, After Trailing at Half.

By CHARLES MARTIN

ONTARIO high school cagers started where they left off last winter in Richland county league competition by defeating the erstwhile unbeaten Lucas quintet, 32 to 20, in its debut at Spring-field township high last night.

Coach Orville Kibler's combine, riddled by graduation last spring, showed promise as it downed the club which already defeated Union and Lexington.

The Ontarioans, paced by Matt Hager, a member of last season's championship outfit, put on a de-termined rally in the second-half to win. Lucas held a 14-13 ad-vantage at the half, the only time it was ahead.

Kibler's athletes held a 7-6 lead in the first period, and after trail-ing at the half came back to take a 21-20 advantage in the third stanza and then iced the game with a nine-point rally in the final chapter. Ontario held Lucas scoreless in the last chapter.

Hager accounted for 12 points to lead the individual scoring. Crawford paced the losers with 11. Greulich, Lucas star, got loose long enough to score seven.

Ontario's seconds came through with an 11-7 victory over the Lucas reserves in the preliminary game.

Miller, Bill Wilkins Lead Madison.

PACED by Joe Miller, who was elected captain of the 1938 Rams earlier this week, Madison high school's cagers romped to an easy 43 to 18 victory at Bellville last night in a county league tus-sle.

Scoring at least 10 points in every period, the rambunctuous Rams set a torrid scoring pace to triumph in their first appearance.

Miller tallied 14 points to lead Madison to victory, and Bill Wil-kins contributed 10 points to as-sist in the rout in which the win-ners led by a good-sized margin all the way.

Obtaining a 11-4 lead in the opening period, Madison length-ened it to 21-9 at the intermission. Although making numerous sub-stitutions, Coach Al Fendrick's men added 10 more points in the third frame to gain a 31-16 lead.

Seven of the 10 Rams who saw service, scored, while Sheriff and Martin divided 12 of the 12 points accumulated by the hosts.

The defeat was the second circuit setback for Union.

Butler, although unable to hit the basket with any regularity, maintained a slim lead through-out. Wendel Ward and Richard King were the mainstays of the Butler attack, each accounting for nine points to pace the club.

Tolles, Union's stellar guard, kept his club in the running with 11 points, which was high for both quintets.

Butler shot into a 4-3 advan-tage in the opening period and led by a 15-9 count at the half. The Knights were ahead 23-21 when play was resumed in the final chapter. Both outfits were held to one point in a thrilling last quarter.

FOCUS EYES ON CHICAGO

Baseball Fans Await Deals Involving Major Stars At Major Confab.

By PAUL MICKELSON

CHICAGO —(AP)— There was plenty of smoke and a lot of fire in the baseball trading business today as the shopping center shift-ed from the Minor league meeting in Milwaukee to the Major league arena in Chicago.

Though the American league turned all the deals at Milwaukee, indications today were that the long awaited swap of Brooklyn's Van Mungo was all but ready for official announcement. And when the eccentric Brooklyn fire baller is traded—to any one of four clubs in the market—the National league is expected to do a land of-fice business.

The best guess—and much of this player dealing is guessing—today as that the New York Giants or Chicago Cubs would get Mungo because those two clubs seemed to have what the undermanned Dodgers needed to rebuild their funny ball club. The Giants opened up a bit last night by sell-ing southpaw Pitcher Al Smith to the St. Louis Cardinals and get-ting Catcher Tom Padden, ex-Pittsburgh Pirate, from the Cards. Padden will go to the Jersey City farm.

SHILOH—Shiloh high's Twin-Valley basketball league combine chalked up its initial circuit tri-umph of the season here last night by smothering Adario, 40 to 13.

R. Mosier led the scoring with 14 points while Black accounted for 11 and J. Mosier added eight to the cause.

Navy Blue and Gold.

"Navy Blue and Gold" opens at midnight tonight at the Ohio with Robert Young, James Stewart, and Lionel Barrymore in the title roles, supported by Tom Brown, Florence Rice and Billie Burke. With the usual set-up of three Annapolis midshipmen who room together to work on, the plot breezes along with the football and romance theme. Young as a cynical youth with no desire for a naval career, Stewart striving for a commission, and Brown, the scion of a wealthy family, scamper through a movie complicated by Stewart getting into disgrace because of an error charged against his father.

Merry-Go-Round of 1938

"Merry-Go-Round of 1938" opening at the Madison Sunday for a three-day run is just the sort of gay and scintillating musical extravaganza the title implies. The cast of character includes Bert Lahr, Jimmie Savo, Billy House, Alice Brady, Mischa Auer, Joy Hodges, and Louise Fazenda. Joy Hodges, as Sally, is left an orphan and reared by four comedians portrayed by Lahr, Savo, House, and Auer. Upon growing up she falls in love with Tony (John King), but hesitates to marry him because she doesn't want to leave her four foster fathers, who are penniless. Complication with Tony's fastidious Aunt Hortense (Alice Brady) brings the plot to the climax.

Night Club Scandal

For the double bill at the Majestic that screen offers "Night Club Scandal" and "Paid To Dance" Sunday and Monday. The first picture presents John Barrymore, Charles Bickford, Dorothy Howe, and Evelyn Brent with a large supporting cast in a murder mystery. Detectives, reporters, and Stephen's sister, played by Louise Campbell, go to work on solving the mystery. The ending is somewhat of a surprise. The love interest, which is slight, grows cold at the end when the jubilant reporter finds the girl of his dreams has been engaged to somebody else all along. "Paid To Dance" starring Don Terry is the familiar story of the dance racket and how it operates

* * *

"The Good Earth."

Paul Muni and Luise Rainer with an unusual supporting cast come to the Ritz for a two-day run starting Sunday in "The Good Earth." The now famous Pearl Buck novel and the subsequent filming of the story is one of the outstanding films of recent months The story is a simple one of a young Chinese couple who strive and struggle against unbelievable odds to obtain a few inches of "the good earth." Drought, storms, and famine come and force them to abandon their home. The poignantly moving story is a familiar one, but the presentation, the acting, the photography is all of such high excellency that the plot is of incidental importance.

One Mid-Western Player Selected

Sweeney of Notre Dame Named to End Position; Two Pitt Stars Honored.

By ALAN GOULD, Associated Press Sports Editor.

NEW YORK—(AP)—In an era of football specialists, developed to handle the growing complexities of America's most spectacular college sport, it is noteworthy that the 1937 All-America team, announced today, emphasizes the part that iron men have played in one of the most stamina-testing seasons on record.

Shock troops and specialists still figure prominently in the maneuvers of the nation's foremost aggregations of gridiron talent, but the all-star spotlight shines brightest on the boys who not only stood the gaff by going the 60-minute route when needed but who also scaled their greatest heights of achievement under pressure.

Sectionally, the distribution of the comeback of the eastern "Old Guard" domain for the second straight year. Paced by Pitts-burgh's mighty Panthers, only outfit to place two men, the east collected five of the 11 berths on the first team.

Off Year In Big 10.

This was an 'off' year for the midwest, notably for the Big Ten, so far as contributions to the All-America argument were concerned, but the South, Southwest and far West challenged the East with a flock of talented performers.

Rarely has a finer crop of ends been studied in action or has any position offered more hazards for the All-America picker. Only after exhaustive examination of their records and comparisons with the best elsewhere did the choices fall upon Notre Dame's Chuck Sweeney and Cornell's Jerome Holland, first colored star to make the first All-America lineup since Walter Camp picked Paul Robeson of Rutgers in 1918.

The east and south waged the hottest contest for the tackles. Ed Franco, Fordham's under-slung play-wrecker, and Pitts-burgh's Tony Matisi, 224-pound powerhouse finally got the call.

The guard spots offered one of the few All-America breathing spells, with little or no dispute to the selection of Joe Routt, the bundle of energy operating on an iron-man basis for Texas A. & M., and Alabama's great captain, Le-roy Monsky.

This year's center choice, Carl Columbus Hinkle, jr., of Vander-bilt, measures up to the highest standards on all counts, includ-ing durability, but his margin is by no means dominating.

All four men selected for this year's All-America backfield are halfback types, though Yale's Clint Frank carries fullback drive and power in his chunky frame.

Over the season's stretch and in the clutches none seriously challenged the All-America lead-ership of Frank and "Whizze" White, the players of the year.

Goldberg Stands Out.

Marshall Goldberg had to be great to stand out on a Pitt team possessing extraordinary back-field talent as a whole. He star-red on the defense and engineer-ed what few passes the Panthers tried but was at his best on Pitt's slashing reverses or off-tackle power trusts.

Like Goldberg, Sam Chapman had to prove his greatness in ex-ceptional company.

The A-P second team: Smith, Oklahoma, and Jordon, Georgia Tech, ends; Markow, Washington, and Mellus, Villanova, tackles; Tweddell, Minnesota, and Lezou-ski, Pittsburgh, guards; Aldrich, Texas Christian, center; O'Brien, Texas Christian; Pingel, Michigan State; Gray, Oregon State; Os-manski, Holy Cross, backs.

Third team: Benton, Arkansas, and Bershak, North Carolina, ends; Kinard, Mississippi, and Gatto, Louisiana State, tackles; Sivell, Auburn, and Zitrides, Dart-mouth, guards; Wojciechowicw, Fordham, center; Luckman, Col-umbia; Isbell, Purdue; McDonald, Ohio State; MacLeod, Dartmouth, backs.

FIGHT POST SEASON BAN

By CHARLES DUNKLEY

CHICAGO — (AP)—Removal of two restrictions on football in the Western conference were up for consideration today by the faculty committee, after their presentation had been made by the direc-tor of athletics.

They were: Lifting the ban on the modified training table which would enable the directors to pro-vide at least one wholesome meal for football players four times a week.

Removal of the ban against post season games. The coaches want legislation that will enable the Big Ten champion to become a potential foe in the annual Rose Bowl game. Not since 1921 has a conference team appeared in the Rose Bowl.

Success of the training table move appeared doubtful, although some of the directors felt certain that the faculty representative would act favorably.

WEST POINT, N. Y.—(U.P.)—Capt. William H. Wood, a star cadet fullback 15 years ago, will coach Army's football team next year. Wood was appointed head coach yesterday, succeeding Lieut. Gar Davidson, who returns to ac-tive service after leading the Sol-diers since 1933. It was a rou-tine change. Davidson had the job five years, one more than has been the custom.

Tygers Defeated In Opener, 22-20

New Cage Edition Shows Promise Despite Loss to More Experienced, Bigger Akron Club.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor

MARK up a defeat for the new basketball edition of Mansfield high school, but this is no definite indication that the 1937-38 cam-paign will prove to be a failure.

Coach Russ Murphy's court cavorters showed plenty of promise on the home hardwood last night before the largest opening night crowd of recent years, but they lacked the height and experience of the rangy Akron Kenmore representatives, and were forced to absorb a 22 to 20 setback in their debut.

The lack of size will handicap the pint-sized Tygers throughout the season, despite the fact that the number of tip-offs have been reduced by the rule change. However, the Murphy boys are slick ball handlers, fast as lightning on their feet, aggressive and alert.

If they can find the range of the hoops, the Tygers will hold their own against the heavy op-ponents which confront them as they are bound to gain experience as the season progresses.

Game Is Faster.

The game is considerably faster with the elimination of a certain amount of jumping, but the well-conditioned Murphymen appear to possess the necessary stamina.

Murphy made only one substi-tution last night, and the Tygers showed less fatigue than their sturdier foes from the Rubber City.

Although not slated to start, Freddy Lewis was put into the lineup by a last-minute change, and he came through with a sparkling offensive performance.

The little letterman accounted for 10 points to lead both teams in scoring. He was the chief Mansfield scoring threat, but Jack Lyons, who paired at the guards with John Hallabrin, and Tommy Scott conducted themselves well in their debut as regulars.

Aided by Prasher, who con-trolled the rebounds, the Cardinal outfit from Akron won the ball game with long shots. The visi-tors failed to show as much ges-ketball as the Tygers, but they hit from out in the field.

Sight to Watch.

Mansfield's short passing game was a sight to watch, and it both-ered the Cardinals not a little as the Tygers broke into an early lead. The Tygers held the lead until midway in the second period, and never regained it, although it knotted the count with a minute to go.

The hard-fought tilt was de-cided in the last minute when Finegan, who, with Storosto, a sub, was a constant menace, pulled away from his man to dribble beneath the unprotected mesh to score the deciding points.

Hallabrin scored the first point of the season for the Tygers with a free throw, and Lyons added the initial basket after taking a short pass from Scott under the bucket. The Tygers tallied seven points before Kenmore could break into the scoring column.

The opening period ended 7-3, and then a barrage of long shots which landed safely within the webbing enabled the Cardinals to tie the count and go ahead by an 11-7 margin before the Tygers could retaliate on Lewis' basket.

Leads at Half.

Kenmore held a 13-9 advantage at the half, and increased the margin to 19-14 at the end of the third period.

Fighting desperately to get back into the ball game, Mansfield gradually reduced the margin, and Lewis' side shot put the Tygers only one point behind going into the last four minutes. Scott's charity toss tied it up, and the game hung in the balance until Finegan provided the game-clinch-ing points.

Finegan and Storosto led the visitors in scoring with six points apiece. Lloyd Miller, Kenmore football star, was at center, and he contributed a pair of baskets.

Reserves Suffer Loss In Last Minutes.

A BAD EXAMPLE was set for the Tygers in the preliminary game when the Mansfield reserves dropped a 20 to 18 decision to the Butler Ex-Hys.

It was a thrill-packed game, and was also decided in the fad-ing seconds. Only three seconds remained when Ed Beveridge cut the nets from behind the foul circle to break an 18-18 deadlock in favor of his team.

The reserves held a 15-10 ad-vantage going into the last pe-riod, but it proved to be insuf-ficient as the Butler boys rallied to pull what appeared to be a de-feat out of the fire. Glendon Miller's bucket knotted the count in the last minute.

Ontario, Madison, Butler Add Wins

Defending County League Champions Turn Back Lucas, 32-20, After Trailing at Half.

By CHARLES MARTIN

ONTARIO high school cagers started where they left off last winter in Richland county league competition by defeating the erstwhile unbeaten Lucas quintet, 32 to 20, in its debut at Spring-field township high last night.

Coach Orville Kibler's combine, riddled by graduation last spring, showed promise as it downed the club which already defeated Union and Lexington.

The Ontarioans, paced by Matt Hager, a member of last season's championship outfit, put on a de-termined rally in the second-half to win. Lucas held a 14-13 ad-vantage at the half, the only time it was ahead.

Kibler's athletes held a 7-6 lead in the first period, and after trail-ing at the half came back to take a 21-20 advantage in the third stanza and then iced the game with a nine-point rally in the final chapter. Ontario held Lucas scoreless in the last chapter.

Hager accounted for 12 points to lead the individual scoring. Crawford paced the losers with 11. Greulich, Lucas star, got loose long enough to score seven.

Ontario's seconds came through with an 11-7 victory over the Lucas reserves in the preliminary game

Miller, Bill Wilkins Lead Madison.

PACED by Joe Miller, who was elected captain of the 1938 Rams earlier this week, Madison high school's cagers romped to an easy 43 to 18 victory at Bellville last night in a county league tus-sle

Scoring at least 10 points in every period, the rambunctuous Rams set a torrid scoring pace to triumph in their first appearance.

Miller tallied 14 points to lead Madison to victory, and Bill Wil-kins contributed 10 points to as-sist in the rout in which the win-ners led by a good-sized margin all the way.

Obtaining a 11-4 lead in the opening period, Madison length-ened it to 21-9 at the intermission. Although making numerous sub-stitutions, Coach Al Fendrick's men added 10 more points in the third frame to gain a 31-16 lead.

Seven of the 19 Rams who saw service, scored, while Sheriff and Martin divided 12 of the 12 points accumulated by the hosts.

Tolles, Union's stellar guard, kept his club in the running with 11 points, which was high for both quintets.

FOCUS EYES ON CHICAGO

Baseball Fans Await Deals Involving Major Stars At Major Confab.

By PAUL MICKELSON

CHICAGO —(AP)— There was plenty of smoke and a lot of fire in the baseball trading business today as the shopping center shift-ed from the Minor league meeting in Milwaukee to the Major league arena in Chicago.

Though the American league turned all the deals at Milwaukee, indications today were that the long awaited swap of Brooklyn's Van Mungo was all but ready for official announcement. And when the eccentric Brooklyn fire baller is traded—to any one of four clubs in the market—the National league is expected to do a land of-fice business

The best guess—and much of this player dealing is guessing—today as that the New York Giants or Chicago Cubs would get Mungo because those two clubs seemed to have what the undermanned Dodgers needed to rebuild their funny ball club. The Giants opened up a bit last night by sell-ing southpaw Pitcher Al Smith to the St. Louis Cardinals and get-ting Catcher Tom Padden, ex-Pittsburgh Pirate, from the Cards. Padden will go to the Jersey City farm.

Paced by the sharpshooting Mosiers and Black, Shiloh had lit-tle trouble with the invaders. Shiloh hopped into a 14-5 lead in the initial frame and increased it to 25-8 at the half. As play was resumed in the final stanza the winners led, 36 to 10.

R. Mosier led the scoring with 14 points while Black accounted for 11 and J. Mosier added eight to the cause.

NEW SUN DECK POPULAR ALL YEAR FEATURE

Provides Degree of Privacy Impossible With Old Type Of Veranda.

It requires no more than a casual study of the modern trend in home building to notice that the American home owning public is becoming more and more "sunshine conscious" with each succeeding year.

People tried out the sun parlor some years ago and some still cling to it, although many others figure that they can get even more benefits in a more convenient manner. Right now interest seems to lie in the sun deck, for it has been found that this can be adapted more effectively for all year enjoyment and benefit than could the sunroom.

Greater Use Now.

In a way the sun deck seemed at first to belong to the home of ultra modern design, which some classify as the modernistic type. This idea has proved so interesting, however, that even the more conservative architects have seen fit to make use of it, with the result that a considerable proportion of the new homes built during the recent summer have included them. The sun deck serves as the latest and so far the most practical substitute for the old porch or veranda and has proved even more attractive and inviting, because usually, it is located at the rear, or at the side of the house, where it offers an excellent view of the gardens or "outdoor livingrooms" which now have gone a long way toward beautifying what formerly was known as the "backyard," and insures perfect privacy.

The modern treatment of a sun deck is to locate it on the second floor level, not infrequently directly above the builtin garage, while in design it usually is a convertible apartment which can be thrown open on two or even three sides during the entire summer season, then glassed in and heated during the winter months. Methods of treament vary, but the happy medium consists of outside walls which provide a maximum amount of window space. The walls, in fact, usually consist chiefly of windows. Some prefer casements, which may be thrown wide open in summer and screened from the inside with removable screen panels. Others make use of removable window sash, but architects find that the casement idea is the most adaptable, because when fall and winter arrive, it is possible to remove the screens and replace them with storm sash and panels of exactly the same dimensions which provide much desired insulation by creating dead air spaces between the inside and outside sash.

DESIGN WALLPAPERS TO FILL EVERY NEED OF HOME OWNERS

The texture of wallpaper has been receiving considerable attention from manufacturers in recent years. Decoration today is a matter of the harmonious arrangement of form, color, and texture as these characteristics are found in furniture, walls and drapes, carpets, and fixtures.

There is a wallpaper texture for every kind of interior, ranging from the hard glossy finishes, through metallics, basket weaves, cloth reproductions, flat pastels, to the old-fashioned "plasters" (designs embossed in one or more colors), still popular in many parts of the country. As a result of the technical progress within the industry it is now possible to finish a wallpaper in a surface texture directly related to the "style" of the art work.

Metallic surfaces without formal design are a direct expression of the modern trend. These come in gold, silver, bronze, and aluminum. At the farthest end of the scale we find papers in pastel shades and, to the touch, seeming to be actually pastel in quality, except, of course, that the colors do not rub off. Delicate though these papers are, they come in fast colors, and, in many cases, are washable.

Among the textile finishes are found embossed papers which simulate monks cloth, basket weaves, and the old-fashioned plasers. Some of the finer handsome papers simulate velvet and mohair so successfully that few outside the wallpaper industry can conceive of how it is done. Woods are duplicated with remarkable fidelity by several different processes. Some of the papers available are real wood veneer on a paper base, but the majority are reproductions.

So-called "oatmeal" wallpapers are no longer made, though they once were popular. Instead, a higher-grade product, available in remarkably beautiful plain colors and known generally as "velours" and "rough plasters," have taken their place.

THE STATE vs. ELNA JEPSON

By NANCY BARR MAVITY

(Copyright 1937)

CHAPTER XXI.

"Is that your idea of newspaper honor?" Elna held out the front page of the extra to James. "You know I sent you those notes because Curtis likes you and I thought you could be trusted. I was afraid you were missing something you needed. I tried to do a friendly act. Well, I won't try again. You made me a silly fool making fun of the attorneys. And you knew—you knew those notes were not to be pubuished verbatim!"

"You didn't say so," James reminded her very softly. "You're so dumb you don't even know what you've done. You've made it impossible for Daniels to try you again if there's a hung jury, which is likely. You've made fun of them till they dare not show their faces. And I did it—saw it—and this is the gratitude I get." James flopped on the couch, burying his head in his hands. "Never mind, you'll win, and I'll just lose my job. That's all."

This sentence brought Elna, no longer angered but bewildered, to James's shoulder. "What's this about losing your job?"

"I sent all this east to A. A. A. Then because nobody else had it, the crabs came in. Anybody who makes an error on the A. A. A. is fired, see?"

* * *

Elna waited for an instant, then called down to Jamieson: "Mr. Jamieson, might I use your telephone long distance if you are present?" Jamieson came upstairs. Elna said, "This is important and concerns Mr. James's relations with his paper. You can cut me off at any moment if you consider I am talking about my case."

"This way." She followed Jamieson down to the jailer's office.

"Mr. McKenzie?" she called at last to James's chief. "I understand you want verification of my photostat story—this is Elna Jepson speaking. Oh yes, it is Elna Jepson. You may check and find that I am talking from the county jail; Mr. Jamieson, the jailer, is present, also your L. M. James and a telegraph boy who came with Mr. James."

"Yes," barked McKenzie.

"I am now speaking not for publication," Elna continued. "My story is correct. It was given by me to James. I did not expect it to be published in its original form, but on reading it over I find that it contains nothing to bar its publication. Is that sufficient?"

"May I speak to Mr. James?" McKenzie asked.

"Of course it's the same girl!" James began. "Oh, thank you, thank you very much. I send you an important exclusive, and I am informed that thanks to Elna Jepson, I'll hold my job. Any time I need Elna Jepson to hold my job——"

Elna shamelessly moved her ear to the receiver.

"James," came the voice of McKenzie more gently over the receiver, "any time I wouldn't take your word on a story over that of a murder jailbird I've never seen. I'd be the one who deserved to be fired. It was all these rumors that you were sweet on Jepson—"

James jerked the receiver from Elna's reach. His voice in return was cool and definite. His cool gray eyes were fixed on hers. "McKenzie, I could be sweet on the grandest woman on earth, and I still would not make an avoidable error for the A. A. A."

A roar sounded from the courtyard.

* * *

Elna glanced about the bright courtroom. Curtis was not there. She stood before the judge, her hands clasped before her, her eyes closed.

"Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, have you reached a verdict?"

"We have not"—that was the foreman Elna most had feared—"and are convinced that we can never agree. All ballots have remained from the first the same—six to six."

"Do you consider you could reach a closer agreement by further discussion?" the judge asked.

"It is impossible!" the foreman said.

"Since the jury is evenly divided, would either side at this time care to suggest a date for a second trial?"

District Attorney Daniels rose. "Your honor, I am going to make a very unusual statement. We have presented a complete circumstantial case as fully and thoroughly as we know how. We still believe in that evidence. Frankly we believe that Miss Jepson has withheld vital evidence, which prevents the district attorney from uncovering any further evidence. The district attorney must inform your honor and the jury that he does not believe Miss Jepson guilty beyond a reasonable doubt, on the facts at hand, and will therefore ask your honor that the case be dismissed."

"Granted," said the judge. "Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, you are now dismissed, and there now stands no case against Elna Jepson. She is free."

* * *

The reporters leaped across chairs and rails to seize individual jurors. The special writers gathered around Elna. "Yes, I'll tell you!" She flung her head back. "I'll tell the truth—that I am not guilty. You may add that I am very tired and am going home to rest—out of jail."

The special writers melted away. James had meanwhile sought a public telephone.

"McKenzie? James. Sorry to call you so late. It's like this. I think I can give you a signed statement clearing the entire Jepson mystery. Give me the rest of the night without any interference by work or money."

"Go ahead." James hung up the receiver.

The courtroom, as he glanced into it, was empty. Then he saw Elna, her back turned to him, creeping with her head against her hand along the judge's bench. He touched her gently.

"I rather thought Curtis would be here," she said. "But we'll consider that closed."

James rushed down the hallway to Judge Ashton's chambers. "Elna needs you badly. She doesn't want to go back to jail. Keep at home in your study until I call you off. I'm out to clear the entire Jepson case before morning, which will be a bit more than your police and district attorney's investigators have been able to do. You'll get the entire break on it, if we succeed. All you have to do is to have good liquor, the dictaphone in order, and follow all leads from me or Graham."

James had felt the necessity of talking to the judge in a way that would reach him. At least thus far he had succeeded.

Now he rushed in to Elna. She said, "Curtis didn't come. I've just been a fool again. Mustn't trust any one."

"Listen, Elna, Graham and I are busy, working to clear you completely. You've cost us too much time already. But Graham's o. k. Now go to bed. I'm busy." He marched out of the courtroom.

"I was only lonely—tired maybe," Elna told Judge Ashton with the deference she reserved for him. Every one forgot——"

The judge's dignified limousine waited outside the nearest entrance. James ran around to them. Graham was already inside, huddled up in a depressed attitude.

"Can't talk to you," was his only greeting to Elna.

"We've lost him," James said in a husky voice of excitement. "Judge Ashton, you'll have to take Miss Jepson home in your car. See her personally to her apartment, just in case some of those press ghouls are trying to pull something. After that, go home as I said. Then I'll have to use the car for the rest of the night—ti's less conspicuous than a police car. All clear?"

"All right, but please remember that my car was stolen if you get into trouble with it!"

"Sure. I'll even do it for you if you like." James remarked over his shoulder, as he hustled the chauffeur to the pavement and took his place.

* * *

When the limousine drew up at Elna's apartment house, Judge Ashton accompanied her to her door. Elna held out her hand in farewell, and was surprised that the old judge stooped to kiss her fingers.

"Little Elna," he said, "you will have to learn that freedom is not easy to manage, after an experience such as yours. Come to me if you want help, ever."

Elna held up the wrinkled hand and kissed it lightly. She listened to the steps slowly descending the stairs.

Elna feared the room as she entered it. It took courage to turn on the living-room light. But, save for a heavy coat of dust, it was as she had always used it. Shivering, she stopped to light the fire. In the kitchen she found her percolator clean, a fresh can of coffee beside it. She prepared the percolator and set it on the familiar living-room table. The fire was happily blazing and Elna, crouched beside it on a huge pillow.

She was half asleep as the warmth of the fire stroked her cold hands.

She turned, almost as in a dream, when she heard, then saw a key open her door, then saw Roger. He was coming toward her, his dark face flushed with victory.

"Elna!" he cried. "We won. You were magnificent. I could not have done better myself." His thin, dark hands clasped her for a moment; then he settled into his familiar chair.

"Several people accused me of the Ainsworth touch. No, you could have done much better—if you had been there."

STEEL COMPANY REAFFIRMS TIN PLATE PRICES

Announcement Is Factor Considered by Holders In Mixed Mart.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Prices slipped a shade either way in today's early stock market.

Among other factors considered by holders of steel shares was the action of the Carnegie-Illinois Corp, principal subsidiary of U. S. Steel, in re-affirming current tin plate prices to the end of the third quarter next year.

In line with the move for peace between the administration and business, the financial district read with interest the address of Chairman Jesse Jones of the Reconstruction Finance Corp., in which he advocated more co-operation as a step toward ending the present trade slump.

Hold-up Victims

L. B. HAMILTON

JAMES BAILEY

James Bailey and L. B. Hamilton, shown above, are two of the Franklin Finance company who were among the eight persons lined against the wall by two bandits who held up the firm at noon today.

front door and got into the car with its engine racing outside.

After the bandit left, Cox rushed to a telephone and summoned police. Cruisers arrived within a few moments.

A description of the car was given by Mrs. Hamilton. She said that it was a dark sedan and apparently had New York license plates and that the licenses were dark orange.

"I only caught a fleeing glimpse of it," she explained.

Hamilton, who dashed out of the office as the robbers left, said he saw the car turn north at Mulberry and Third streets.

Detectives Harry Copper and E. C. Fuller, said from descriptions given them of the pair, they apparently were the same men who held up the two Atlantic and Pacific Grocery stores on Thanksgiving eve.

Both were "fairly well dressed," employes said. One of them wore glasses.

The gunmen entered the office a half hour before closing time, which is noon on Saturdays.

State highway patrolmen were notified to block all highways throughout northeastern Ohio. Police at Shelby, Upper Sandusky, Bucyrus, Crestline, Fremont, Fostoria and Tiffin also were notified.

Highway patrol headquarters at Massillon reported that records showed the same pair were being sought for similar hold-ups in the Fostoria area and in Akron.

Passing shoppers were not aware what had transpired at the company until police cruisers arrived. A crowd quickly gathered outside.

"When he came into my office and I looked at the gun I saw it was loaded," Hamilton said. "I could see the shells in the cylinder, and I knew that he meant business."

Detective Copper said the pair's descriptions checked with those given by employes of the A. & P. stores on Springmill street and Park avenue west which were robbed Thanksgiving eve.

They obtained $100 at the Park avenue store after looting two cash registers, and $41 and 25 cartons of cigarets at the Springmill store.

Hold-ups in Fremont and Fostoria last Saturday also were believed to be the work of the same pair. Their tactics in these grocery robberies were similar to those executed here.

they finish their sentences, but we do believe that the program is a progressive one and a step in the right direction.

"It will give the inmate a chance to earn his own living. He will have spending money, the lack of which frequently leads them to one of the hundreds of cells in our institution. If successful in obtaining a job, he won't be lounging in idleness, often the cause of crime itself."

Patterned after vocational schools, now a major function of public education, the reformatory plan calls for certain hours of classroom instruction and certain hours of work in the shops.

The system was inaugurated with the assistance of Fred Dannefelser, principal of a vocational high school in Toledo. He spent three months at the reformatory in installing the trades courses.

Under the program, inmates are given up to 18 months of intensive training, along the subjects they select Promotions are made every three months.

Text books used in the courses are compiled and written by institution instructors. The contents are taken from various recognized texts and consolidated into volumes printed in the prison printery.

This procedure not only has resulted in a saving of institution funds but provides the inmate with a text containing only the essentials for the apprentice course, the superintendent pointed out. Briefness of the courses will not permit study of voluminous texts.

'Hardened' by Farm Work.

Glattke explained that after an inmate completes his class and shop course, he is given three months of farm duty to "harden him up."

"After his course is completed, work on the farm or in the dairy is assigned the inmate so that he will acquire the necessary muscular development and get accustomed to outside elements," the superintendent said.

"There are a very few inmates who leave with a prison pallor due to the outside life permitted during the final months of his sentence," he added.

They are sent to the Osborne state farm at Huron, the Soldiers' and Sailors' home at Sandusky, the state farm at Grafton and to farms located on institution grounds here.

Glattke asserted the fact that 65 per cent of prison's population is sent from seven industrial counties was a factor considered when the trade school program was first planned. Cuyahoga, Hancock, Franklin, Montgomery, Stark Summit and Lucas counties send the most inmates, he said.

Trades offered under the program include: tailoring, automobile mechanics, barbering, building construction, agriculture, plumbing, stationary engineering, drafting, business administration, culinary arts, laundry, machine shop, shoe making, furniture construction, sheet metal, and electricity.

Perjury Charge Hinted for 'Key Man' In Parole Quiz

Not That It Matters

—By JANE WILLIAMS

WHAT ever became of Mansfield's anti-noise campaign which was announced early this year? Did it die a-bornin' or was it tried and found wanting? The city of Jackson, Miss., not only tried it out, but made a success of it, according to a news story this week. And Jackson sounds like a mighty restful place for one with nerves frazzled by auto horns and raucous cut-outs.

The mayor of Jackson said "let there be silence," and just to show that he wasn't kidding, had about 25 persons arrested a day. Fines ranged from $1 to $25 a person. He got results.

Mansfield is sadly in need of something of the sort. Unnecessary noise during the day and especially in the night has driven many city dwellers to the outlying districts. It isn't the natural noise of a city that disturbs—such as factory whistles, church bells, the rumble of traffic over business streets. It's the unnecessary racket that spells sleepless nights for hundreds of people here.

It's old cars without mufflers, roaring as though they were rounding the final curve at the Indianapolis track; it's the grinding, screeching stop of trucks and speeding cars slapping on the brakes belatedly at stop streets; drivers using their horns instead of their brakes at intersections; trucks rumbling over short cuts through the side streets in the residential sections instead of staying on the through highways.

* * *

MAYOR LA GUARDIA in New York City is still working on his anti-noise campaign, launched two years ago, and other cities are beginning to wake up to the fact that such a campaign isn't a joke but a necessity. The noise abatement commission in New York made a scientific research and reported that noise induces partial deafness, retards mental effort, interferes with the normal development of the young, and lessens the value of sleep. And it doesn't take a commission nor research to determine that a loud radio or constantly barking dog can play the very devil with your disposition.

Chances are Mansfield has some laws or ordinances sticking around in old statute books that would cover the situation pretty well—if some one would dig them out and enforce them.

THE simple mining folks of the Tygart settlement in West Virginia were vastly impressed and awed when Doris Duke Cromwell and Mrs. Roosevelt came to call on them in their humble homes.

As who wouldn't have been? Mrs. Cromwell wore a long coat of Russian mink and Mrs. Roosevelt had Russian sables at her throat. It probably will be the only opportunity the miners' wives will have of touching mink and sable, for as I understand the new federal housing projects, the model homes are equipped with electric refrigerators and ranges—but there are no sables in the clothes closets.

ONE of the more satirical phases of our juvenile delinquency problem came to light this week, when the mystery of several robberies was solved. It really wasn't much of a mystery for police; it was merely a matter of catching the young boy whom they have caught many times before for night robberies. He's caught, arrested, scolded by juvenile court and sent home, time and time again. And for the very simple reason that there is nothing else that can be done with him.

He's too young for the Reformatory, too dumb for Lancaster Industrial school, and not idiotic enough for a psychopathic institution. The point is that Lancaster won't take 'em with a low I. Q. Boys have got to be fairly smart before they are acceptable there.

So he's on the loose again and merchants had better hide all of their money, candy and cigarets before they close up the store for the night. You'll soon be reading of another "series of robberies."

THOUGHTS — if any — While Strolling: Mansfield looks like Pittsburgh sometimes with a fog of coal smoke hanging low over the down town district, and you come in off the street looking as if you're made up for a "Mammy" act . . . It's so difficult to feel Christmas in the air when there isn't any snow, but other harbingers are rows and rows of bed room slippers in the shoe store windows, and elaborate displays of toilet articles and shaving sets . . . Like the toy windows best of all and wish that there could be one big, bright new toy for every single little boy and girl in the world—especially all of the pitiable little shavers in Spain and China.... Plenty of Mansfield's Little Fellas would love to have just one new toy, too...Don't forget to call the mayor and ask about a big Christmas tree for the entrance to Central park. Loads of kids can see it there....

* * *

POLICE CHIEF Meade K. Bates has a "big stick" for the night clubs and, according to yesterday's News-Journal, he has cracked down with it, as he threatened to do several weeks ago. The state liquor laws give the clubs the right to stay open and operate until 2:30 a. m., and the clubs pay for that right in their special licenses. BUT—

The city of Mansfield has a little ordinance of its own, conflicting with that of the state, whereby the police department may close night spots at 1 a. m., regardless of their state licenses. Bates will use that ordinance to do a bit of clubbing on his own, it appears, and the big stick undoubtedly will fall hardest on the spots that persist in selling to minors or permitting minors even to stay in their places. And since considerable liquor business is done after 1 o'clock, the order, if enforced, will have real teeth in it.

It's the chief's way of saying: "You wouldn't be good — now look what's happened to you!"

He climbs into his neighbor's garden,

Union Threatens to Spread Ford Strikes

2 MORE PLANTS TO HALT WORK, LEADERS SAY

UAW Indicates 'Big Push' Near To Force Auto Magnate to Sign Union Contract.

ST. LOUIS—(U.P.)—The United Automobile Workers indicated today that strikes in two more assembly plants of the Ford Motor company would be called next week if they failed to force the company to deal with the union, strikes in "feeder" plants supplying Ford with parts would follow immediately.

Richard T. Frankensteen, international vice-president and secretary of the union, hastened here to revitalize the strike called against the local Ford assembly plant. Called Nov. 25, it has not prevented the plant from operating. He intimated the union was about to use mass picketing on a most extensive scale to close the plant.

Heralds 'Big Push.'

Frankensteen's arrival to consult with local and regional leaders conducting the strike and to address the strikers, indicated that the United Automobile Workers' long-heralded and long-prepared drive on Ford, the only major producer who has not signed a union contract, was about to begin.

Addressing a mass meeting of the union last night, Frankensteen said:

"I'm not sure of how many workers are actively supporting you here, but I do know that there are enough workers in this city that when you say no one is going into the plant and no one is going to build cars, that they won't go in and they won't build cars—and that day may not be far off."

Before the meeting, Frankensteen said that strikes in the Ford plants at Kansas City and Long Beach, Cal., where there have been strikes before, were planned and that workers in both were thoroughly organized to walk out when the international union gave the word.

Frankensteen said that strike calls in the "feeder" plants, where the union is known to have some strength, would be issued if the strikers in the assembly plants did not cause Ford to deal with the union.

America, of course, is not the only country in the world that uses the Christmas Health Seal sale in the fight against tuberculosis, and an unusual collection of Health Seals from foreign lands is the hobby of Mrs. Roeliff Brinkerhoff, and her grandson, Henry Gilbert, 12, 35 Bartley avenue. They have sheets of seals from many countries, each one in beautiful colors and with the figures and costumes of the natives on them. Among the loveliest are those from Korea, Norway, Japan, France and Sweden. All of them however, bear the same double barred red cross that appears on the American seal.

DUFFY CLAIMS NAYLOR LIED TO GRAND JURY

Attorney General Indicates Alleged 'Parole Broker' Will Face Charges.

COLUMBUS — (AP)—The possibility that Arch W. (Stub) Naylor, "key witness" in a grand jury investigation of alleged irregularities in the state's parole system, might face perjury charges, loomed today after Atty. Gen. Herbert S. Duffy accused him of lying.

"Stubby, you've lied like a trooper," Duffy fired at the alleged "parole broker" in an argument outside the jury room yesterday.

Didn't 'Play Square.'

"You haven't played square with us," supplemented a juror, supporting Duffy.

Naylor, friend of Leland S. Dougan, former chairman of the state parole board, traded Duffy his testimony for a guarantee of immunity from prosecution in the parole probe, but the attorney general said that the guarantee did not prohibit officials from charging him with perjury..

The jury tussled for three hours with Naylor yesterday but apparently failed to obtain much useful information. Loud voices emanating from the room indicated that Duffy and the jurors were having difficulty getting Naylor to answer their questions satisfactorily.

The attorney general's accusation was hurled just as he was preparing to dismiss Naylor as a witness and send him back to Zanesville, where he had been held on an open charge.

Request Refused.

Naylor, who came here Tuesday and spent two days on the witness stand after refusing to testify until he was granted immunity, had requested permission to go to Cleveland.

"Positively, no," declared Duffy, following up with his opinion of Naylor's testimony.

After the session, the jury recessed for the week-end with the understanding that Naylor probably would be brought back from Zanesville to testify some time next week.

EFFINGER MAPS COURT FIGHT

Accused Black Legion Head Surrenders, Battles Return On Michigan Charge.

LIMA—(AP)—Virgil H. (Bert) Effinger, accused commander of the Black Legion who walked out of an extradition hearing at Columbus and was unheard of for 15 months, was back home today, ready to battle in court his return to Michigan to face charges of criminal syndicalism and possession of explosives.

The portly one-time electrical contractor surrendered suddenly and dramatically yesterday, without indicating where he had been, as the climax to a lengthy search that extended through several states.

An hour after his arrest, 15 minutes of which he spent locked in the Allen county jail, Effinger was freed under $1,000 bond by Common Pleas Judge E. E. Everett, who set hearing of a hebeas corpus writ for next Friday morning.

Judge Everett also granted an injunction restraining law enforcement officers from arresting Effinger on charges similar to those contained in the warrants upon which he was held today.

Lima Chief of Police Ward Taylor and Deputy Sheriff Donald Ford drove to Effinger's residence shortly before dusk. Taylor, who was driving, stopped in front of the home and honked the horn of his automobile. Effinger and his 20-year-old daughter, Marjorie, came immediately from a side door, entered the automobile and were driven to police headquarters. Five minutes later he was taken to the Allen county jail and booked.

2 DEATHS MAR MIAMI AIR SHOW

Kling, Haines, Both Ace Speed Pilots Killed as Planes Crash on Course.

MIAMI, Fla.—(AP)—Two fire-blackened patches of debris formed mute epitaphs today for two of the country's most daring air race pilots as Miami's annual air show entered its second day.

The deaths late yesterday of Rudy Kling, Lemont, Ill., and Fran Haines, Detroit, in accidents singular in the annals of American airplane racing, actuated a move to obtain withdrawal of a third pilot from remaining competition here.

Of the three crack riders of tiny, temperamental and exceptionally speedy machines entered, only S. J. Wittman of Oshkosh, Wis., remained, and the contest committee planned to ask the erasure of his name from the list of competitors.

Only stock model airplanes, 75 to 100 miles an hour slower than the special racing ships of Wittman, Kling and Haines would remain to fly for the prize money and trophies offered by the show, the All-American air maneuvers.

What killed Haines and Kling, the latter rated as air race pilot No. 1 by virtue of his money earnings at the National Air races in Cleveland last September, probably will remain a mystery.

Versions varied, but it was agreed that both pilots struck the ground at tremendous speed within seconds of each other

PROFESSOR MAKES DENIAL ON HOOVER INCOME TAX INQUIRY

BOSTON—(U.P.)—Prof. William Starr Myers of Princeton university denied today that he had told a New York audience yesterday: "I am authorized to say that the present administration has investigated the income tax returns of Herbert Hoover for three weeks to try to get something on him." He had been misquoted, Prof. Myers said.

The quotation was contained in a press release from New York's Town Hall, where Prof. Myers lectured, and was published widely. The quotation continued: "Think of that! Investigating the income tax returns of a former president of the United States."

Myers was asked who had authorized him to make the statement, and denied having made it. What he actually had said, he declared, was:

"The United States government has used its power to investigate unfairly and contrary to the English common law idea that a person should be held innocent until proven guilty. As a matter of fact I know that some three or four years ago the income tax of Herbert Hoover was investigated in an apparent effort to get something on him. It has come to a pretty pass when income tax returns of an ex-president should be subject to investigation."

Myers said that his information came from several sources which he considered reliable.

Lawrence Richey, secretary of Mr. Hoover, was told yesterday of the statement attributed to Myers by the press release from Town Hall. He said:

"Prof. Myers has been misquoted. Mr. Hoover has not been annoyed, and has no complaint to make."

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 4, 1937.

Drive carefully tomorrow—you can't do Christmas shopping from a hospital bed.

The men who "want but little here below" will probably never develop into a major political party.

"The license to practice law does not license an attorney in criminal activity with clients, nor does it permit him to aid and abet the commission of crime," according to a New York court, which will probably come as a distinct shock to some of the shysters who are permitted to call themselves lawyers.

Crowds Increase Traffic Hazards.

LARGER crowds on the streets during the final weeks of Christmas shopping brings requirement for more than ordinary care in driving motor vehicles in business sections of the city.

It becomes a frequent occurrence, during the holiday rush, that crossings are not cleared of pedestrians when traffic lights turn from red to green, and courteous motorists will be slow in starting until crossings are clear—even when they "have the light."

There will also be need for more than ordinary watchfulness in making either right or left turns when cross-walks are crowded—as pedestrians are entirely within their rights in crossing on the red light and motorists are required to keep their cars under complete control when making turns at intersections.

In this season of "good will toward men" it is quite fitting that careful driving should be included among the evidences of the Christmas spirit.

Those Christmas Savings Checks.

EDUCATION in ability to MAKE money has little value unless it carries through to explaining how to SAVE money.

Many people have learned, to their later sorrow, that it is far easier to MAKE money than it is to SAVE it.

The only reason for saving money, of course, is to have it for later use, or investment. And even an investment is intended only to store up money for future USE.

Within the past few days almost a quarter of a million dollars was turned back, in the form of Christmas Savings checks sent to more than five thousand Mansfielders by the four Mansfield banks operating this form of education in saving.

Establishing a proper proportion between earning, spending and saving is not easy. The Christmas Savings Fund idea performs valuable service in teaching the advantages of small, regular saving.

Experiment In Hospital Insurance.

TOLEDO this week followed the lead of a number of other cities in adopting a plan for hospitalization on an insurance basis, with costs as low as 60 cents a month entitling the subscriber to 21 days of ward hospitalization at any time during the year, in any hospital included in the arrangement.

In Toledo, this project is being worked out along lines developed in New York, Cleveland and other cities, with cooperation of physicians, hospitals, industries and civic groups.

It has been found in cities where such a plan for meeting hospitalization costs has been tried that benefits are mutual, employes getting assurance of proper hospitalization, companies benefiting by the better health of workers, hospitals getting their money promptly from the fund, and physicians and surgeons in much better position to get their pay because subscribers are relieved from hospital costs.

While this experiment appears to not yet be applicable to smaller cities it is one that may well be watched with interest.

Profit and Production.

HENRY FORD, who doesn't seem to care much for money—perhaps because he has so much of it—makes some challenging remarks in a recent interview. Blaming the present business situation largely on the "money system," he adds:

"But any system that seeks profits alone is terribly handicapped to begin with. Here is a nation that might be the richest in the world, when actually we haven't enough of anything, because there isn't enough production. The need is here; the ability to produce is here; the stoppage is in the system that puts profit before production—and that is the money system."

In these views, as expressed by Mr. Ford, there is the germ of an idea which may be confidently expected to eventually develop into a course of action, as the average of human intelligence is gradually raised.

Just now, the so-called "best brains" of the country are apparently unable to successfully cope with the problem of production and distribution of things that are needed.

When profit becomes secondary to service and when "money" stands merely as evidence of work performed, rather than as a plaything for financiers, national and world problems will be much simplified.

Pension Money From Slot Machines.

NEED for more money to increase monthly grants to old-age pensioners can be met by legalizing and licensing slot machines, according to the idea of two members of the lower house of the general assembly.

A report from Columbus is to the effect that a bill will be in readiness by next week to legalize operation of slot machines as a means of increasing state revenues for use in paying old-age pensions.

This proposal is not dissimilar to the bill that bobs up at each legislative session intended to clear the way for operation of lotteries in this state.

Many would regret the necessity of resorting to legalization of gambling as a means of pensioning those worthy old folks who are unable to provide for themselves.

Thus far even the most ardent New Dealers have refrained from blaming the repression on Herbert Hoover.

One trouble about letting well enough alone is that it usually isn't "well enough."

McIntyre's New York Day by Day

PURELY personal piffle: Nothing makes me feel more at home than a loud ticking hall clock. When I think of Bob Ripley living in the splendor of an island castle and roaming the world at will I recall his early days and what one fellow did with an idea. And don't worry about Youth's chances.

Only Rodgers and Hart tune I never liked: Johnny One Note. As a parlor trick I'd like to jabber away in that fake French like Charlie Judels. Best of the mots when the Windsors gave up their trip to U. S.: John Chapman's "And so to Bedaux!" Next big headlines Russia's economic crack-up.

Favorite of the Amos 'n' Andy characters: The Kingfish. "The Song of India" sets me dreaming of a long travel trip. Not many can kid the other fellow with a straight face like Harry Staton, the syndicate man. Animal suffering makes me ill, with a temperature and everything.

When the household wants to see me beam, they announce beaten round steak with cream gravy, for dinner. Not more than a half a dozen O. Henry stories really fascinated. The rest always struck me as second rate. I like to hear the radio's "Prof. Quiz" shout: "You are absolutely right!"

The only Algernon I ever knew was a hostler in a small town livery stable. And a fellow packed with odd information. Such as corduroy was originally a royal cloth for kings only—called cord-du-roi. The most bored expressions I've ever seen were in the boxes at the Metropolitan. At one time I was the reporter on a country daily, galley usher in the local opera house and on Saturday passed handbills for my aunt's millinery shop to the farmers. Closet skeleton stuff: Also I spent a half hour in the cooler for swimming in the creek au naturel.

For no reason at all there are three people at whose approach along the street I sidle up to windows as though greatly interested until they pass. Gen. Hugh Johnson is whipping over the neatest glove-fitting phrases among the daily scribblers. Our town had the perfect novel name for a bartender—Tony McHale. The most faithful employees ever known were two who tipped hats to male employers. Rudest people in New York: The ermined crew at first nights. My all-time favorite dig at restaurant prices is Bugs Baer's cry: "Waiter, my check and a fright wig!" I'd like to get the fun out of life at 60 that Daniel Frohman seems to get in his 80's. Frank Case is the only hotel man left who dines among guests in his own dining room. Newest symbol of feminine luxury: Those white fox evening coats. Cholly Knickerbocker is one scribbler who chatters as entertainingly as he writes. My greatest fits of depression are invariably around six in the evening.

Cantaloupe is the only food I cannot digest easily. Mrs. Walter Chrysler is the most striking white haired smart dresser. Shyest movie star ever met was Joan Crawford. Or she was putting on a swell act. H. G. Wells is souring his public with his windiness. I've tried this year to like football, but am still apathetic. Burris Jenkins, Jr., is another with Bob Edgren's gift to do a swell job of writing as well as drawing sports. Mitzi Green is proof that all "wonder kiddies" do not fade into obscurity with maturity. I've known but one person who could explain what eyebrows are for.

Easiest current model for the caricaturists: John L. Lewis. But none tops Ding's jutting-jawed limning of F. D. R. I can think of nothing so dismal as the Windsors with 70 trunks packed to sail, suddenly forced to cancel the trip. That would almost topple me off the water wagon. For many years I thought traveling incognito meant a private railroad coach. Gabriel Heatter's "And a man named Soandso" is one of the few radio repetitions that never bore.

Frederic Lonsdale wore the most attractive necktie I ever saw—a black silk foulard four-in-hand with one single vertical half-inch pink stripe through the loop. Fame: Three secretaries of close friends address me as Od McIntire. But there was a kick in getting without delay a postcard Gene Fowler mailed in Palestine bearing only this: "O O. America." When a waiter starts pouring chocolate sauce over my ice cream I contrive to look the other way so he will keep right on pouring.

Heavy Local Taxation Really Hits Hardest

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—President William Green of the American Federation of Labor suggests with much cogency that reduction in local taxation rates might go a long way toward stimulating home building throughout the nation.

Federal taxation is very burdensome unquestionably, but, to the average individual, it is nothing to compare with his state, county and city levies.

Communities do rage against their respective local loads, but they do it scatteringly. Podunk's citizenry denounces Polunk's assessments. Four Corners denounces Four Corners' assessments. But they do not do their yelping unitedly. They holler with one voice, however, against Uncle Sam's exactions, because Uncle Samuel's are centralized, hitting alike Podunk, Four Corners and every other state, county, city, town and hamlet throughout the country.

* * *

HOW IT WORKS

Let me illustrate.

I do business out of Washington, in the District of Columbia But my home is in the Washington suburb of Alexandria, state of Virginia.

Now, as a Washingtonian, I pay a federal tax of so-and-so much. It is enough to be irritating, but I can stand it. Yet my Virginia state, Fairfax county and Alexandria city tax total is a bit more than four times what I have to pay to the U. S. government.

Virginia, in short, is four times greedier than Uncle Sam is.

Yet I can not cuss the Virginia assessor except in a small scale, local way, inaudible beyond my immediate neighborhood. On the opposite hand, I can cuss the federal assessor to the accompaniment of other voices, from Atlantic to Pacific and from the Canada line to the Gulf of Mexico.

Nevertheless, local taxation is better worthy of cussing than federal taxation.

* * *

NO AVERAGE POSSIBLE

I once tried to arrive at an estimate of per capita taxation throughout the United States.

I soon discovered that such an estimate means nothing.

It is easy enough to calculate federal taxation per capita.

It also is easy enough to total local taxation and divide that up, but local taxation may be 5 per cent in one bailiwick and 25 per cent in another one.

Podunk, perhaps, is rather lightly levied on in one spot, but elsewhere Four Corners is soaked scandalously. How hit on an all-around average? It is impossible. A lightly- (locally) taxed area may be reasonably prosperous; a heavily-taxed adjoining area less prosperous.

An average has no all-around significance.

* * *

LOCAL AFFLICTION

Of course local taxation is awful everywhere.

It cripples the little fellow.

The big chap is more afflicted by undivided profits and capital gains levies.

But, ask William Green:

"Can the little fellow put his savings (if any) into a small home, with two or three assessments a year, locally, and break even in comparison with a city tenement (not to say slum) dwelling?"

Heed William Green!

Listen, World!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

If You Want to Stay Together —Stay Apart.

CONSTANT "hangin' around," has ruined more romances, messed up more marriages, than all the other divorce grounds put together.

This notion that two loving hearts should always "beat as one"—should share each leisure moment and each private thought—listens lovely in theory, but is plain poison in practice. There is no surer way to destroy the mystery and allure of love than continuous association. If you want to stay together—stay apart!

People need privacy. Deeper than hunger or fear or the urge for reproduction runs this desire for occasional isolation. Even animals feel this need—resent its violation. A hound has his personal nook . . . a man his pet chair.

We all have intervals when we must retreat into ourselves . . . when our spirits clamor to walk by their lone And at such times we regard the intrusion of even the Best Beloved with resentment.

This craving for privacy is not abnormal or anti-social. It is a fundamental law of nature. IT IS THE DEEPEST PERSONAL RIGHT. AND IT TAKES PRECEDENCE OVER OUR SOCIAL DUTIES.

We are individuals, primarily, and unless we retain and develop that individuality, we fail in our other obligations. But we cannot retain our individuality unless we have times of temporary retreat. At such times, we find our true selves again, regain our original pattern and purpose. The tension is loosed . . . we are no longer on guard. And in that silence, something happens to us . . . we are revived, reborn . . . we emerge cleansed and quickened, ready for larger living, deeper loving.

Or, rather, we would—if we had the chance! But just try to assert your Right to Privacy in the usual family circle, and see what it buys you. Black looks . . . pointed remarks . . . deep, dark suspicions. Are you sick? No! Then maybe you're mad? What—not mad? Then what the heck does ail you? Whatsa Big Idea of being such a Gloom . . . sitting around like a Bump on a Log when everyone else wants to be sociable? Haven't you any manners? Or perhaps you're Trying To Hide Something? And so on and on.

The invasions aren't always vocal. A Wistful Eye can wreck privacy quite as effectively as a Wagging Tongue . . . And a Snooty or Snivelling Silence be as maddening as a Rah Rah Chorus. In either case, ladies or gents with a yen for solitude are Just Outta Luck.

Resentment rises to its highest pitch in the home, where privacy is most needed. Wedlock soon becomes a deadly business unless there are buffers against the chafing of incessant intimacy. Those piquant differences and alluring mysteries, which first provoked love, speedily perish under the strangling possessiveness of the average marriage.

IT IS AS INDECENT TO MEDDLE WITH ANOTHER'S PRIVATE THOUGHTS AS IT IS TO USE HIS TOOTHBRUSH—AND AS OUTRAGEOUS TO MOLEST HIS SOLITUDE, UNINVITED, AS TO INVADE HIS BATHROOM.

There are dull and cowardly creatures who do not care for privacy themselves—who boast that their "love is so great" that they "wish to share everything." But love has nothing to do with it. These vacuums dislike and distrust privacy because they are unable to think themselves—and suspect the process in others.

But normal beings both desire and demand their seasons of withdrawal, and quite rightfully raise Cain if such rights aren't respected.

In or out of marriage, the loss of privacy is a deadly serious matter. We can, at a pinch, do without a leg or arm or eye. But the spirit which is denied the Right of Retreat is cut off from the very source of its potency . . . becomes a meaningless nonentity.

Timely Editorial

Big Year for Good Roads.

The biggest road building job it has ever completed is reported for 1937 by the federal government. A total of 22,000 miles was built under federal direction during the fiscal year. There were 1,149 grade crossings eliminated, 574 were protected with signals and 196 crossing structures were rebuilt. This safety work far surpassed any other year, the federal Bureau of Public Roads reports.

The millions spent on federal aid on highway construction and on crossing elimination will be classed generally as among the best expenditures from Washington. Convenience and safety of travel are the permanent results. Jobs for thousands of workers were provided. Paved highways are one important aid to national defense which has an every day peace-time importance. — Toledo Blade.

What One Man Thinks

—By DAVID GIBSON

A tyrant in power is a slave out of power.

Money is a commodity only when used for speculation.

The old time family 5-rib roast o' beef is now a museum piece—a collector's item.

We're all so concerned in abolishing our own individual poverty that we approve of mass exploitation.

What's become of the old-time German family that spread straw on the dining room floor at Christmas time—to suggest the stable at Bethlehem?

So-Called Stars.

THESE widely publicized and high-salaried young men and women, so-called stars in modern film productions, are not actors or actresses.

They are not even entertainers. And there is a distinction between an entertainer and an actor or actress—for instance, no one would call a song-and-dance artist, or a sleight of hand man an actor.

These young, so-called stars are not selected for their histrionic ability, but rather for their very personal appearance, for their romantic appeal—the men to the women in the audience, the women to the men.

All the art to these so-called stars is their clothes, and they didn't design nor make them.

There are no doubt exceptions and all that, but those that I have observed are in historical or biographical plays, selected for their physical likeness to the characters that they are to represent, even though they may have gray hair and totter a bit.

"Exhibitionists" is the only term that I can apply to the average so-called movie star.

The only real actors and actresses in film production today, according to my observation, are elderly men and women who were in stage plays long before the days of the silver screen—George Arliss, Lionel Barrymore, W. C. Field and May Robson.

I think that the point is proven by the fact that most of these screen Exhibitionists of yesteryear are now in minor parts or have retired to private life with an occasional fling over the radio so that nobody can see them—Clara Kimball Young and Mary Pickford.

The Old Riley House.

ALL through Indiana there is a sincere effort to honor the memory of James Whitcomb Riley, the Hoosier poet.

I respect this spirit; for it indicates a healthful sentiment and away from all material considerations. While sentiment is not the meat and potatoes of life, yet it is the sauce of material existence.

I have always respected the people of Bavarian Germany—there is a picture of Goethe in every household and hotel room.

Public honor during life and memoralizing after death to men of accomplishment encourages a coming generation to go and do likewise—for the attending recognition.

I think that the one reason France has had so many distinguished men and women is that generation after generation, monuments have been erected to the great and near-great.

Riley's child verse and dialect poetry will live, but as a pure lyric poet—well, he was not a John Keats in the music of words.

The other day in going through Greenfield, Ind., Riley's birthplace, 30 miles east of Indianapolis, I stopped in at the old family home. It has been recently purchased by the city of Greenfield and made into a shrine.

Quite a large center hall, two-story, white frame house on the main street—the comfortable home of a prosperous county seat town probate lawyer of the 60's and 70's as was Mr. Riley's father, Ruben A. Riley. The original name was O'Riley—old Ruben being the first of the family to drop the pre-letter.

The last previous time I was in this house was with Mr. Riley himself—about 35 years ago, I think.

It was out of the hands of the family for many years, but Mr. Riley purchased it in 1893, added a bath room, a central heating plant and rented it for many years to the late Walter Montgomery, editor and publisher of the old Greenfield Republican, a fine human character and an able writer—he just died the other day in his 80th year at New Albany, Ind.

Mr. Riley said that he maintained squatter rights in this old house; he used to go over there now and again and spend a few days wandering around the old rooms and autographing books for the neighbors.

The committee of citizens in charge have done a pretty good job in restoring this old house in the spirit of Mr. Riley's childhood and youth.

It is about of the same period as the Lincoln house at Springfield, Ill., now owned by the state, but not so good in design as the latter and which has less scroll work as a matter of external display.

In the Riley house much of the old furniture has been reassembled—contributed by relatives and town's people.

Still, I do not think that there should be any community attempt to restore one of these historic old houses save under the direction of a museum expert—no more than a building should be erected without an architect.

The very beautiful job of restoration of Washington's home at Mt. Vernon, Va., is the result of untold research and by specialists.

Or, there is the restoration of the old state house at Corydon, Ind., and the Lanaire house at Madison, Ind., the latter being the finest colonial structure in the central west. Both of these tasks were by my old friend, Col. Richard Lieber, and they exceed in faithfulness that of the Washington home.

For instance, the Riley house is heated by steam and which was not the way of warmth in the period it is now supposed to represent. The radiators in the rooms have all been newly painted. While it is not practical to heat a new public institution with stoves or open fire-places, yet these steam radiators should be concealed by coverings.

The lighting of the main rooms is by electric bulbs placed under the large globes of what were once coal-oil hanging lamps. While it is not practical to use oil in lighting by reason of the fire risk, yet the wall switches should be concealed—off in a closet somewhere.

There is a new fence around the lot—of boards in cross-panels and painted white. It should have been a picket fence—there are still carpenters about that could at least give direction as to constructing them.

Many interesting items relative to James Whitcomb Riley have been assembled and are on exhibition in this old house—early photographs of Mr. Riley and his family, early manuscripts and bills of plays in which he appeared professionally.

In his late youth and early manhood, he was a sign painter by trade. For many years after he became famous, there were many examples of his signs about Greenfield and surrounding villages, the last one that I remember being "A. J. Banks," a black and gold leaf sign in large, well formed letters over a local hardware store. Most of these have been assembled in a separate building in the rear of the Riley home and in a way are the most interesting items of the entire collection.

This Riley shrine represents much thought, effort and no little material cost, and the folks at Greenfield are entitled to high public credit in their memorial to their illustrious son.

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

I QUICKLY averted my eyes from Dicky's as he made his dry comment about "Old Man Coincidence working overtime today." Knowing the keenness of his insight, I was fairly sure that he had guessed the necessary clutch adjustment on Noel's car had been maneuvered by Jim into the total breakdown just reported to us over the telephone

But as he also knew that Jim would never do anything outside his regular routine unless especially instructed by a member of the farmhouse family, he would not need opera glasses to see the person responsible for the plot to thwart Philip Veritzen by keeping Noel another day with Mary and the rest of us.

"Jim is holding the line," I said needlessly, and Dicky gave a short laugh.

Dicky Leaves.

"I'm glad to know that," he gibed. "I thought perhaps he was doing a sitdown strike by the side of the road. But don't keep him any longer. Tell him to get busy on the telephone with the garage for a tow job, and then go back to the car and wait for me. I'll be down there before the garage men, if I start this minute."

"Richard!" his mother called imperatively after him. "Don't speed!"

He waved his hand debonairly over his head without turning.

"Thirty-five is my motto," he answered in the fashion he has replied to that warning ever since his mother has lived with us

He was out of sight, and presumably beyond hearing before she could reply. As I went back to the telephone, I heard her sigh, and then came her invariable plaint: "I know he's going to speed. He'll have a terrible accident some day."

Sometimes those words almost—but not quite—betray me into shrieking protest, for the Cassandra role is never enjoyed one by the listeners. But today I felt a sudden rush of tenderness at my mother-in-law's fears. It was as if a door had suddenly opened, giving me comprehension of the futile, irritating, yet especially heartfelt and agonizing anxiety of old people for the safety of their loved ones.

But there was no use in trying to assure her that Dicky would not speed She justifiably would not accept my dictum, and she did not expect an answer anyway. So I hurried to the telephone and spoke quickly to Jim.

"Mr. Graham says you are to call the garage at once and have them come out to you, prepared to tow the car He has started to meet you at the car and bring you back home. But do not let them take the car until Mr Graham gets there. And, Jim—"

I stopped abruptly, and Jim said a bit uneasily: "Yes, Mis' Graham."

"It's nothing, after all." I said quickly. "I thought I had something more to tell you, but I haven't. Mr. Graham will be there in a few minutes."

"I'll hurry through this call and go right back to the car," Jim assured me, and I hung up the telephone with the abashed consciousness that I very nearly had warned Jim to look out for Dicky's possible suspicious and questioning And that over a telephone with its possibilities of listeners!

Katie Knows Plot!

Mother Graham was right behind me when I turned away from the telephone.

"I'm going upstairs now, if you don't mind," she said, "and rest until Mary comes back. I have so much to ask her, and so little time to ask it, for, of course, I don't want to rob her of her husband of the little time they have to be together. But what a Godsend this accident is! If it had been deliberately planned, it could not have happened more opportunely."

I looked sharply at her, but her face and eyes were guileless With much relief I went out to the kitchen, and with Katie, went over the details of the dinner which was to be composed of the favorite dishes of Mary and Noel.

"I have good news for you Katie" I said when the dinner plans seemed fool-proof.

She looked at me with a shrewd smile

"You mean Mees Mary und Meester Noel got to stay here for anudderday? Dot goot scheme you feex up mit dot Jeem!"

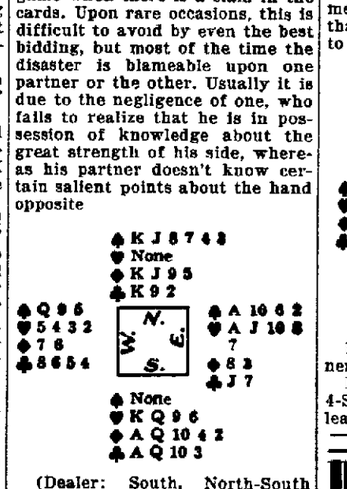
"The Authority on Authorities"

A SAD CALAMITY

ONE OF the saddest calamities that can befall a strong side is to have the bidding drop at less than game when there is a slam in the cards. Upon rare occasions, this is difficult to avoid by even the best bidding, but most of the time the disaster is blameable upon one partner or the other. Usually it is due to the negligence of one, who fails to realize that he is in possession of knowledge about the great strength of his side, whereas his partner doesn't know certain salient points about the hand opposite



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable)

Over South's 1-Diamond bid, North responded with 1-Spade and East went to 2-Hearts, which south doubled North now rebid his spades and South bid 3-Clubs. When North took this to 3-Diamonds, South passed. Seven-Diamonds were made on the hand.

South was perfectly right in his severe criticism of North's bidding. South had bid diamonds, doubled hearts and later bid clubs. It should have been clear to North that South held five diamonds, four or five clubs and three or four hearts. With four trumps in the North hand to take care of heart ruffs, if needed, and a filler for the club suit, North's bid should have been 4-Diamonds and the slam could have been reached. However, South read North's bid of 3-Diamonds as merely showing a preference for that suit over clubs and decided to drop the bidding.

GALION—Playing to one of the largest audiences to attend a little-theater production in this city, a cast of 25 players sponsored by the Drama Workshop Players, directed by Hilda Schooley, gave a successful presentation Friday night of "First Lady" three-act play by Katherine Dayton and George S. Kaufman.

This was the first production of the 11th season of community drama under the sponsorship of the Drama Workshop Players.

Music between acts was furnished by the Senior High school orchestra directed by Walter F. VonBrock.

FACES GALION CHARGE

GALION—William Mantz, alias C. L. Lambert, alias S. E. Hapes, was brought to Galion Friday from Union City, Ind., to face a charge of passing bad checks here. Sheriff A. H. French and Patrolman Charles Ferrall went to Union City Friday morning after Hayes who voluntarily agreed to waive extradition. Hayes had cashed forged commission checks on four Galion merchants totaling $151, three weeks ago. It was expected that he would be given a hearing here today or Monday.

Navy Blue and Gold.

"Navy Blue and Gold" opens at midnight tonight at the Ohio with Robert Young, James Stewart, and Lionel Barrymore in the title roles, supported by Tom Brown, Florence Rice and Billie Burke. With the usual set-up of three Annapolis midshipmen who room together to work on, the plot breezes along with the football and romance theme. Young as a cynical youth with no desire for a naval career, Stewart striving for a commission, and Brown, the scion of a wealthy family, scamper through a movie complicated by Stewart getting into disgrace because of an error charged against his father.

Merry-Go-Round of 1938

"Merry-Go-Round of 1938" opening at the Madison Sunday for a three-day run is just the sort of gay and scintillating musical extravaganza the title implies. The cast of character includes Bert Lahr, Jimmie Savo, Billy House, Alice Brady, Mischa Auer, Joy Hodges, and Louise Fazenda. Joy Hodges, as Sally, is left an orphan and reared by four comedians portrayed by Lahr, Savo, House, and Auer. Upon growing up she falls in love with Tony (John King), but hesitates to marry him because she doesn't want to leave her four foster fathers, who are penniless. Complication with Tony's fastidious Aunt Hortense (Alice Brady) brings the plot to the climax.

Night Club Scandal

For the double bill at the Majestic that screen offers "Night Club Scandal" and "Paid To Dance" Sunday and Monday. The first picture presents John Barrymore, Charles Bickford, Dorothy Howe, and Evelyn Brent with a large supporting cast in a murder mystery. Detectives, reporters, and Stephen's sister, played by Louise Campbell, go to work on solving the mystery. The ending is somewhat of a surprise. The love interest, which is slight, grows cold at the end when the jubilant reporter finds the girl of his dreams has been engaged to somebody else all along. "Paid To Dance" starring Don Terry is the familiar story of the dance racket and how it operates

* * *

"The Good Earth."

Paul Muni and Luise Rainer with an unusual supporting cast come to the Ritz for a two-day run starting Sunday in "The Good Earth." The now famous Pearl Buck novel and the subsequent filming of the story is one of the outstanding films of recent months. The story is a simple one of a young Chinese couple who strive and struggle against unbelievable odds to obtain a few inches of "the good earth." Drought, storms, and famine come and force them to abandon their home. The poignantly moving story is a familiar one, but the presentation, the acting, the photography is all of such high excellency that the plot is of incidental importance.
